ERIC SOLOMON SELECTIONS
- New Importer for Clos Saint Jean -

Over twenty years ago, Eric Solomon made a bold move and started his company with two estates from an unknown region in the south of France. Today, those estates (Domaine de Marcoux and Domaine de la Janasse) and the region (Châteauneuf-du-Pape) rank among the top wines of the world.

In 2003, Clos Saint Jean made a bold move of their own when they and consulting enologist Philippe Cambie delayed picking until the end of September, when virtually every other property had finished. It was a risk that paid off tenfold, producing the most profound wines of that vintage and setting the stage for subsequent vintages of unparalleled quality including four 100 point scores from Robert Parker.

This kindred spirit of boldness and the close relationship with Phillippe Cambie has brought Clos Saint Jean & Eric Solomon Selections together to anticipate the upcoming fall releases of the 2008 vintage from the estate.
