Much like many of the appellations of the southern Rhône, the wines of Gigondas are based on the Grenache grape. It has a tendency towards rusticity if yields are not checked or if it is vinified carelessly. It is supported by Syrah and Mourvèdre with smaller amounts of various other varieties. There are two types of wine made in Gigondas, red and rosé but the production of rosé is so small it's mainly an academic point.

Domaine des Bosquets has deep historical roots in Gigondas. It was first mentioned as a vineyard site in 1376. The most recent chapter of the history of Domaine des Bosquets began in 2010 when Julien Brechet took charge of the property. With little in the way of technical training, his brother, proprietor of Château de Vadiou, sent him to Château de Pibarnon in Bandol to begin his training before finishing his informal studies at Château de Vadiou. Under Julien's leadership and assisted with a small staff of six employees, he has begun to map out his terroirs through careful studies and micro-vinifications. Rather than rob his Gigondas Reserve of its best parts, these parcel wines are made in limited quantities and serve to make his regular Gigondas better. Since 2015 he's begun to convert the property to certified organic farming with the goal to have the estate farmed biodynamically as well. Cover crops are encouraged and are plowed under to ensure the roots penetrate deep into the subsoil. Care is taken to preserve the biodiversity surrounding his parcels to promote natural pest control.

Les Routes is 100% Serine, a variety that is either an old clone of Syrah or a very close relative. Better known in the Northern Rhône Valley, this variety was planted by Julien's grandfather from bud wood he got from his friend Jacques Reynaud from his vineyards at Fonsalette, Jacques in turn got it from Gerard Chave. Planted on an exposed site on the plains of Gigondas, this parcel of Serine is exposed to nearly constant winds resulting in low yields (usually well under 20hl/HA) of small clusters and tiny berries.
